RIGHTWAY GROWTH · COLD CALL

The Cold Call

One goal: book the free Google clarity audit. You are a consultant choosing who gets one of ten spots. Say why you called in the first ten seconds, never ask for their time, show what you found, qualify, give two times.

	Stage	Your goal
1	Why I called	Consultant. Free Google clarity audits, to see if we're a fit. First ten seconds.
2	Ten clients only	Relationship, quality, results for both. Why most fail at marketing.
3	What I found	Their real scan and their real wrong directories. Then stop talking.
4	Qualify	Decision maker, wants more work, what a job is worth.
5	Book the audit	15 minutes on a screen share. Two times, never "do you want it".
6	Lock it in	Email, decision makers on the screen, text permission, homework.

BEFORE YOU DIAL

- Hub: Phone, Dialer. Pick the time zone tab that is in calling hours. The queue only shows leads between 8am and 8pm their time.
- Call prep opens beside the queue and researches the next leads ahead. If a lead shows no scan, press Research now, then Check listings.
- Red banner on the dialer = a wallet is low. Tell the owner. No DataForSEO funds means no scans and no listing checks.
- After every call the result popup opens. Log it. The Hub sets the callback for you.

HOW TO READ THIS

- Plain text: say it, word for word until it is yours.
- Green blanks: fill in from call prep in the Hub. It shows the real names and numbers.
- SCREEN boxes: what is on the screen and what you point at, at that moment.
- Grey italic: your stage directions. Never read these out loud.

1 Why I called

WHY I CALLED, IN TEN SECONDS

Hi, is this first name? ... first name, this is your name, I'm a consultant with RightWay Growth.

The reason for my call: we're running free Google clarity audits for industry businesses in city, to see if we'd be a good fit to work with each other.

> No "how are you", no asking for their time. Say why you called in the first ten seconds, then go straight into the frame. Slow, low, certain.

YOUR SCREEN Phone, Dialer. Call prep is open beside the queue: their name, the scan line and the listing check. No research yet? Press Research now while it rings.

2 Ten clients only

HIGHER AUTHORITY: TEN CLIENTS ONLY

We only take on ten clients at a time. That way we can focus on the relationship, the quality of the work, and real results, for both of us.

That's honestly why most businesses fail at marketing. They get dropped into a cookie cutter, one size fits all package, and nobody ever looks at their actual situation. So we audit first, and we only work with businesses where we know we can move the needle.

3 What I found

WHAT I FOUND, WITH REAL NUMBERS

I already ran the first part on business. scan line from call prep

That means when someone in city needs "keyword" today, a lot of them are calling top competitor before they ever see you.

I also checked the directories Google uses to double check you, and X of 15 have you wrong or missing, directory for one.

> Stop talking. Let it land.

YOUR SCREEN read the numbers straight off call prep, Scan and "Listings Google double checks". Never claim a scan or a listing check that is not on your screen.

4 Qualify

DO THEY QUALIFY FOR A SPOT?

So two quick things, to see if it even makes sense to go further.

You're the one who makes the marketing decisions there, right? (If not: who is, and when can we get them on the screen too?)

And are you set up to take on more work right now, or are you maxed out? (Maxed out: is it the work you want, or would you take more of the bigger jobs?)

Ballpark, what's a typical job worth to you? (Starting guess for industry: job value.)

> Owner, wants more work, job worth it: book the audit. Not the owner: get the name and a time. Truly not a fit: thank them and move on. You are choosing who gets one of the ten spots.

YOUR SCREEN type their answers into the lead notes as they talk. The job value is your number on the price slide later.

5 Book the audit

BOOK THE AUDIT

Here's how the audit works. It's 15 minutes on a screen share. I walk you through the full scan street by street, who's getting your calls and why, and every listing Google has wrong. At the end we both decide if it's a fit. If it's not, you keep the audit, no hard feelings.

I have time 1 or time 2 open. Which one works better for you?

> Give two times. Never ask if they want it. If they say right now: "Perfect, are you in front of a computer?" Then switch call prep to the Clarity audit tab and start at the opener.

YOUR SCREEN press Book meeting and pick the time they chose.

6 Lock it in

LOCK IT IN SO THEY SHOW UP

Perfect, you're locked in for [day and time]. What's the best email for the invite?

Is anyone else involved in the marketing decisions? Have them on the screen too, because I only hold the spot once.

Is it OK if I text you a reminder with the link? (If yes, tap "They said yes to texts".)

One thing before we talk: search "keyword" on your phone and see who comes up. We'll compare it to the scan.

YOUR SCREEN in Book meeting, Google connected sends the Meet invite by itself. Not connected: paste your Zoom or Meet link, press Book it, then Text it or Email it. Then log the call as Booked.

BOOKED? BEFORE THE NEXT DIAL

- Log the call as Booked. The lead moves to Audit booked and shows on your Dashboard and in Coming up.
- Google connected: the Meet invite went out on its own. Not connected: paste your Zoom or Meet link in Book meeting and press Text it or Email it.
- Run Check listings now if it hasn't run, so the audit shows their actual wrong directories.

If you hit a gatekeeper or voicemail

G Gatekeeper

GET A NAME AND A TIME, NOT A PITCH

Hi, this is your name, I'm a consultant with RightWay Growth. I ran a Google clarity audit on business and I need two minutes with the owner about what I found. Is first name in?

OR Who takes care of the Google listing there? ... Great, what is the best time to catch them?

> Friendly and brief. Get a name and a time, not a pitch.

V Voicemail

UNDER 25 SECONDS

Hey first name, it's your name, a consultant with RightWay Growth. We're running free Google clarity audits for a few industry businesses in city. I already ran part of yours. top competitor is showing up ahead of you in most of city. We only take on ten clients, so call me back at your number. Again, your name, your number.

> Under 25 seconds. Say the number twice, slowly. Text only if they gave permission or texted first.

Cold call objections

"Not interested"

Totally fair. Most owners aren't, until they see it. That's why the audit is free and only 15 minutes: you'll know exactly where you stand on Google either way. And if we're not a fit, I'll tell you. I have time 1 or time 2. Which is better?

"We're booked out"

That's the best problem to have. Is it the work you want, though, or would you take more of the bigger jobs if they came in? (Listen.) The audit shows you who's getting those bigger jobs in your area right now. I have time 1 or time 2.

"What is this about?"

We're running free Google clarity audits for industry businesses in city. I ran part of yours and found inconsistencies in where you show up for keyword. We only take ten clients, so the audit is how we both see if it's a fit. 15 minutes. time 1 or time 2?

"Is this a sales call?"

It's a qualifying call. We only take on ten clients, so before I take any more of your time I want to see if you're even a fit. That's what the free audit is for. time 1 or time 2?

"How much does it cost?"

The audit is free. If we end up working together, it depends on what your business actually needs, and that's exactly what the audit shows. I'd be guessing before that, and I don't guess with people's money. time 1 or time 2?

"Just send me something"

I can, but a PDF won't show you the map street by street, and that's the part that matters. It's 15 minutes on a screen share, and you keep the audit either way. time 1 or time 2?

"I already have someone handling my Google"

Good, that means you take it seriously. Quick question: do they show you a map like this every month? Right now you're on the first page in X of Y spots around you. Is that where you expected to be? (Let them answer.) I'm not going to talk badly about anyone. I'll just show you how we're different, and you decide. (Back to script.)

"Just send me an email"

Happy to. So it doesn't get buried, what part should I focus on? (Let them answer.) Honestly, the map makes way more sense on the screen than in an email, and it's 15 minutes. Does time 1 or time 2 work?

"I'm busy right now"

Totally get it, you're running a business. The clarity scan takes 15 minutes on a screen share. Is later today or tomorrow morning better? I'll put it on my calendar and call right on time.

"Are you with Google?"

No, we're an independent local marketing company in Hollywood, Florida. We help businesses show up better on Google and get more calls from it.

"How did you get my number?"

Your business number is public on your Google listing. I came across business while checking who shows up for "keyword" in city.
