COLD CALL SCRIPT: COMPETITOR ANALYSIS

The call:

Hey Is this [Name/Owner]

It's [Name] with Rightway Growth:

Just seeing how we could help , we used your info to create a free Competitor Analysis.

I have two spots left for tomorrow to take care of any questions about the report.

I have a 12PM or 5PM. Which works better for you?

Once they give you a time:

Got it. I'll shoot you a email/text an invite while we're still on the phone.

Also, if you have a computer or phone for the meeting so we can share our screen through the free analysis.

Make sure you keep you're free for the appointment, since we only have a few slots.

Discovery after booking (Optional):

Is there anything you've been thinking about you would want me to take a look into before we meet [time/date].

Rebuttals:

"What's this about?"

It's your free Competitor Analysis - shows where you rank on against your competitors and why. And then we also throw in and send a game plan report, so you know what to tweak with no guessing…Both are yours to keep. So what time were your free for

“Who are you?”

We’re rightway growth, gotta be honest with you were a boutique marketing company(startup agency) and take on few clients so we can focus on quality. If we’re a good fit for each other we can help out. If not, you keep the report and strategy free…so which time did you say you were free with?

“How much does this cost?”

(Laugh) Honestly I don’t even know if there’s any way I could help you without getting to know you or where your gaps are,were performance based. we can take a look at an analysis and if we can tailor something for you, we can get to work immediately. What time did you want to take a look at that?

“I get these calls all the time.”

I hear you boss me too, we’re business owners. Everyone’s gonna try to sell you something. But we also are looking for a good fit to work with which is why we’re reaching out. Let’s find out when we get on a call, so was either 12pm or 5pm good for you?

“I’m not interested.”

I’m sure. You probably have been burned before. We jumped ship from those guys too after seeing how business owners get treated like numbers. Which is why we’re boutique and focus on quality but I can only take on so many and we’re also selective if we can help. Would that be worth jumping on a meeting and see if we’re a good fit?

“What can you do for me about (problem)?“

Well there’s dozens of things we can provide for you, but I’m sure you can appreciate we can’t fix something unless we take a look at it first. If there was a chance we could fix the [problem] maybe bring more revenue would that be worth having a conversation about?

“What can you offer?”(broad)

Honestly we’re full service company, we can make your websites, run ads, organic marketing, even throw some ai in your business. But I wouldn’t sell you anything right now unless I knew I could help you. If you think there’s a chance we can help you grow, would that be worth having a conversation about?

“I already have a company”

I bet you do you’re in [industry]

“Why not have a second pair of eyes to make sure he’s working for you and not just fleecing your pockets? It’s free to find out. You get a report to show him and if you think we could help, you’ll have your answer on the call, I can meet today or tomorrow at 12 or 5?”
